'Twas the Night Before Christmas

Classified Style

'Twas the night before Christmas,
when all through the house,
Not a creature was stirring, not even my spouse.
My wife was asleep next to me in the bed,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in her head.

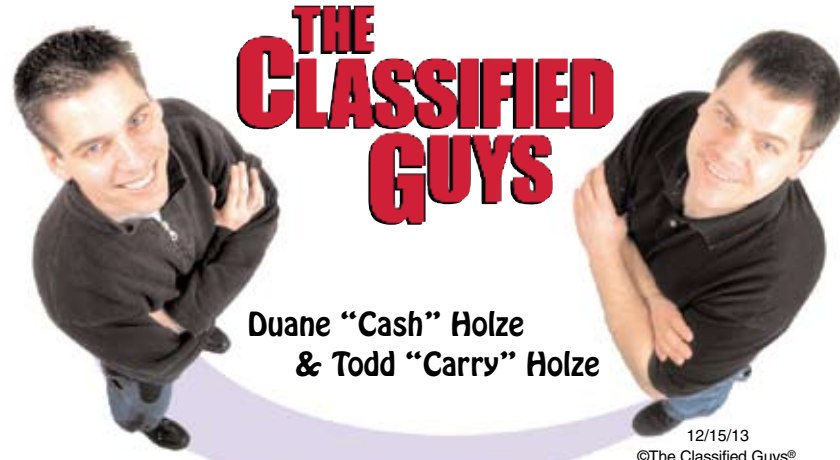

I lay there remembering one week ago,
The party we had on the day that it snowed.
I was already dressed and relaxing downstairs,
While my wife was deciding which outfit to wear.

When up in our room there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my chair to see what was the matter.
Away to the bedroom I flew like a flash,
My wife holding jewelry and everything clashed.

The light of the lamp caused her red dress to glow,
Her new party shoes were all ready to go.
She looked like a star in her long evening gown,
But without matching jewelry she felt like a clown.

And that's when it hit me I knew what to get her,
A set of new jewelry to make her feel better.
On a budget like mine could I find a selection?
That's when I thought of the classified section.

There were Rubies and Emeralds, Diamonds and Pearls,
Amethysts, Sapphires, Opals and Beryls.
From less than a carat that wouldn't cost much,
To the very expensive I wouldn't dare touch.

With all of this jewelry listed for sale,
It soon became clear that I just might prevail.
There wasn't much time with the guests on the way,
Just one simple ad would save the whole day.

And then, in a twinkling, I saw one just right,
I called up the seller explaining my plight.
"There's no way I'll make it, the guests are soon due.
Unless," I suggested, "you'd like to come too."

Our friends then arrived with holiday cheer,
Bringing presents, champagne and even some beer.
But a jolly old man, he stood out from the rest,
His attire was different from all of the guests.

He was dressed all in red and was holding a box,
He leaned in and whispered, "I brought you the rocks."
His beard was so white, his smile so merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!

The life of the party, he really fit in,
Telling jokes to the guests and sharing a grin.
He grabbed a big plate and then added some food,
The more that he ate the more jolly his mood.

A few sips of nog, then he gave me the sign,
To peer in the box, it all sparkled and shined.
But before I could look and decide what to choose,
He said, "Take it all! It'll match your wife's shoes!"

He took off from the party as quick as he came,
Without taking payment or leaving his name.
It was quite the event I will never forget,
To receive such a gift from a man I just met.

As I drifted to sleep, I remembered that eve,
And how one simple man could make you believe.
I can still hear his words as he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all,
and to all a Good-Night."
